The Political Science/Criminal Justice Department and the International Relations Association of Appalachian State University sponsor Model United Nations Conferences on Appalachian’s campus. This program is a way of getting students involved in and aware of the various international events that are affecting the interests and well-being of the United States and the world as we move into the new millennium.

The Committees that will be simulated at our Fall Conference this year are:

Security Council

REGISTRATION
A non-refundable registration fee of $25.00 for the first delegation (set of one or two students per committee) and $10 for each additional delegation is required with the return of the attached application form (if paying by check, make it payable to International Relations Association). There also is a fee of $10.00 per delegate to help defray the expenses of the conference that will be paid at registration on the day of the conference. First choice for delegation assignments will decided on a first come, first serve basis. Applications will be accepted until Sunday, October 13, 2013. Once applications and initial fees are received, country assignments will be sent.

PREPARATION
Teachers will be aided by having most of the basic material needed by students provided by ASU. Information on conference organization, general issue summarizes, and rules of procedures will be available via the International Relations Associations web page (http://www.ira.appstate.edu), as well as additional resources for student research.

LODGING
Information about local hotels can be found at the IRA website (http://ira.appstate.edu/high-school-model/fall-2011/hotel-information).

If you have any questions or need further information, please do not hesitate to contact us.
